THE WORLD NEEDS BETTER LAWYERS

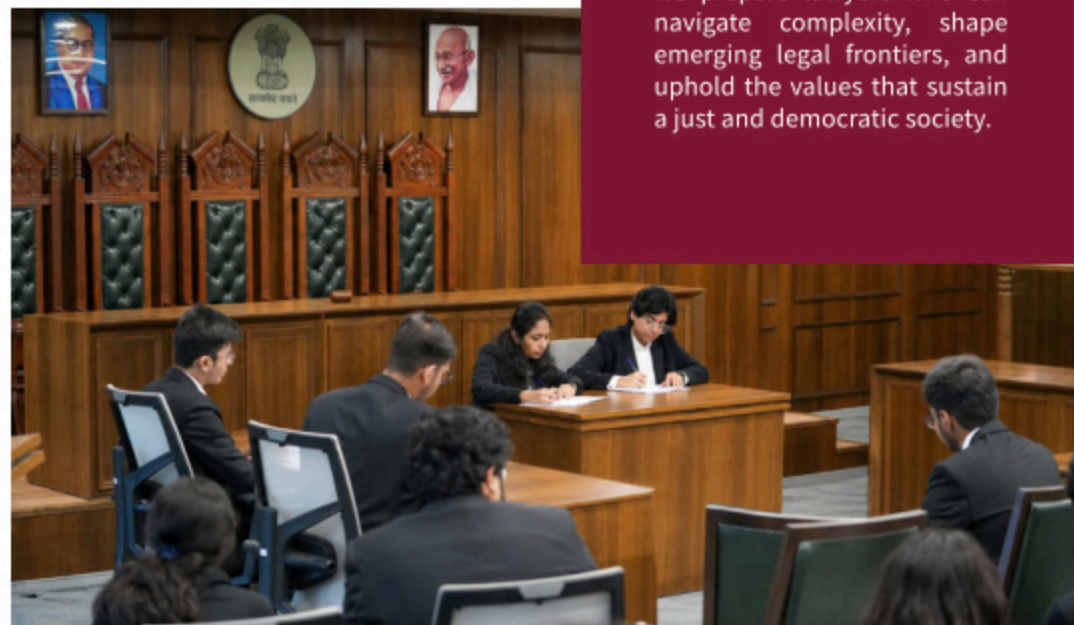

The Constitution reflects the values that define our nation.

The Indian Constitution is embedded with the deepest values: a sense of justice and a commitment to rights.

Safeguarding them demands lawyers with something more than legal knowledge. It demands creativity: the capacity to see a problem from every angle, to find the argument no one else imagined. It demands empathy: the ability to understand the human cost of every clause, every ruling, every silence in the law.

The world is changing faster than any single statute can keep pace with. Technology is rewriting contracts, evidence, and liability. Globalisation is dissolving jurisdictional certainty. Climate, public health, and artificial intelligence are creating legal territories no previous generation charted.

At BITS Law School,
we prepare lawyers who can navigate complexity, shape emerging legal frontiers, and uphold the values that sustain a just and democratic society.

60 YEARS OF NATION BUILDING

Before there were statistics, there was a vision.

In 1901, Shri Seth Shiv Narain Birla established a Pathshala in the small town of Pilani, Rajasthan. It was an act of faith, the belief that education was not a private advantage to be hoarded, but a public good to be given.

For over a century, that conviction grew. What began as a small school became a college, then a university, then an Institution of Eminence recognised by the Government of India in 2020, an institution whose alumni now lead companies valued at over $65 billion, whose founders and co-founders number more than 6,400, whose engineers, scientists, and entrepreneurs have shaped modern India in ways too numerous to catalogue.

BITS Pilani did not make people who followed India's story. It made people who wrote it.

MESSAGE FROM THE DEAN

As a living discipline, law grows in conversation with the society it serves. It gives structure to the daily conduct of individuals and institutions alike and renews itself in response to the questions each era demands of it. Law is woven from the threads of society, history, economy, and politics, and reveals itself fully only when studied as such. The next chapter of Indian legal education is waiting to be written.

At BITS Law School, law is taught in context, legal study placed in dialogue with technology, allied disciplines, contested perspectives, and international scholarship, forming lawyers whose learning extends far beyond doctrinal recall. Our graduates will grasp the law in its depth, apply it with rigour, carry it into everyday life, and place it in the service of others.

At BITS Law School students first master the art of legal reasoning, the enduring foundations of doctrine, logic, and argument, and only then turn to technology to amplify them. Artificial Intelligence, legal analytics, smart contracts, and digital dispute resolution are changing how lawyers research, draft, advise, and litigate, and our students will engage with these instruments as an integral part of their education. Yet we are deliberate about the order of things, no tool can be a substitute for thought. A lawyer who understands the why of the law will always command the tools, but a lawyer who knows only the tools will be commanded by them.

Built on the legacy of BITS Pilani and its alumni, BITS Law School is rooted in Mumbai, where finance, law, media, arts, and sport converge. For over a century, lawyers have shaped the story of India. The chapters ahead await a new generation bold enough to dream and prepared enough to lead. I warmly invite you to join BITS Law School, Mumbai, and to make that story your own.

HOW WE TEACH LAW

At BITS Law School, asking the right questions matters as much as knowing the answers. From the very first year, students learn not only what the law says, but why, through open discussion in the classroom and real practice beyond it.

01

THE SOCRATIC METHOD

Every class at BITS Law School is a seminar, not a lecture. The Socratic method, the practice of learning through rigorous questioning rather than passive receipt of information, is the pedagogical spine of the school.

This pedagogy shapes students into active legal thinkers, capable of interrogating ideas, refining arguments, and understanding that mastery of law lies not in memorisation, but in the ability to reason, respond, and rethink.

MOOTING FROM SEMESTER 1

From the very first semester, students step into the moot court, not as a final-year capstone, but as a foundational part of their legal education.

This is where doctrine meets argument, and where reading judgments evolves into building and defending a case. Mooting at BITS Law School is designed to cultivate research, reasoning, advocacy, and courtroom confidence from the very beginning.

PRIME - PROFESSIONAL INDUSTRY MENTORSHIP PROGRAMME

The Professional Industry Mentorship Programme bridges the gap between academic excellence and professional effectiveness. Through structured sessions with practising lawyers, in-house counsel, judges, and policy experts, students develop the precision, conduct, and commercial awareness the profession demands.

PRIME is not a careers module. It is a professional formation programme.

04

THE BITS LAW WRITING CENTRE

Legal writing is legal thinking made visible. The BITS LAW Writing Centre provides students with dedicated support through structured workshops, individual coaching, and discipline-specific feedback to develop the precision and persuasion that distinguish excellent legal professionals.

05

TRANSDISCIPLINARY CURRICULUM

Transdisciplinary learning is central to the academic design of BITS Law School. Legal education is not delivered in isolation, but in close integration with disciplines such as political science, sociology, history, economics, finance, and technology, enabling students to situate legal doctrine within its broader social, institutional, and economic context.

The B.A. and B.B.A. programmes are deliberately structured to feed into the LL.B. programme. They constitute the foundational stage of the curriculum, providing students with disciplinary grounding in the social sciences and business studies prior to advanced engagement with legal study. This integrated academic pathway ensures that legal education is informed by a systematic understanding of society and institutions, thereby enabling a more contextual and rigorous engagement with law.

IMMERSIONS & CLINICAL LEARNING

Immersion and clinical legal education bring the study of law into direct engagement with institutions, industries, culture, and society. Through four clinical legal courses, students work with real cases, real clients, and real consequences, developing the ability to apply legal reasoning beyond the classroom.

Learning is further strengthened through study excursions to Century Rayon, the Bombay High Court, Kanheri Caves, the Godrej Archives, Postcards From Colaba, an immersive walking performance, and the National Museum of Indian Cinema. Students have also participated in global study exchange opportunities, including the U.S. Business Law Academy at Columbia University and King's College London.

PROGRAMMES & SPECIALISATIONS

52 Courses, 5 Specialisations:
An Opportunity of a Lifetime

BITS Law School offers two five-year integrated Honours programmes that combine rigorous legal training with an interdisciplinary curriculum and a strong emphasis on professional development.

The Honours structure provides greater academic depth than a conventional integrated law programme, enabling students to engage deeply with specialised areas of law while strengthening research, analytical, and writing capabilities.

B.A. LL.B. (HONS.)

Integrating law with political science, history, sociology, and economics, this programme develops a nuanced understanding of the institutional, historical, and societal contexts in which legal systems evolve and operate.

“Law is not just a set of rules. It’s a lived experience shaped by history, society, and human values. It helps students see jurisprudence not as an abstraction but as something that affects real lives and freedoms.”

PROF. (DR.) KAVERI HARITAS
Professor of Sociology, BITS Law School

B.B.A. LL.B. (HONS.)

Integrating legal education with business and managerial studies, this programme equips students to navigate complex business environments and understand the legal considerations that shape organisational strategy and transactions.

“For aspiring lawyers, understanding markets, incentives, and strategy, and developing strong economic reasoning is critical. Lawyers must be able to speak the language of founders, CEOs, and boards.”

PROF. (DR.) ANAND MISHRA
Professor of Accounting and Finance, BITS Law School

THE CURRICULUM STRUCTURE

52 courses leading to the integrated five-year degree:

- 20 Compulsory Law Courses

LIFE ON CAMPUS

A CAMPUS THAT MATCHES THE AMBITION

The BITS Pilani Mumbai Campus is a 63-acre, zero-carbon-footprint, eco-friendly campus near Kalyan in the Mumbai Metropolitan Region (MMR), designed by renowned architect Hafeez Contractor.

From tech-enabled libraries and centres for research excellence to an auditorium, sports pavilion, and landscaped courtyards and plazas, the campus is designed to support both academic and student life. A world-class learning environment and a home away from home.

SEE IT FOR YOURSELF

Scan to take a virtual tour of the BITS Pilani Mumbai Campus.

The campus operates with round-the-clock security, CCTV surveillance, and in-house wardens. A medical centre with a doctor on call and 24/7 ambulance access ensures immediate support for any health-related need.

An in-house clinical psychologist from Mpower (an Aditya Birla Education Trust initiative) supports students' wellbeing, because a good legal education attends to the whole person, not just the lawyer in formation.

Students reside in fully furnished, air-conditioned twin-sharing rooms with attached bathrooms on a fully residential campus that functions as both a community and an institution.

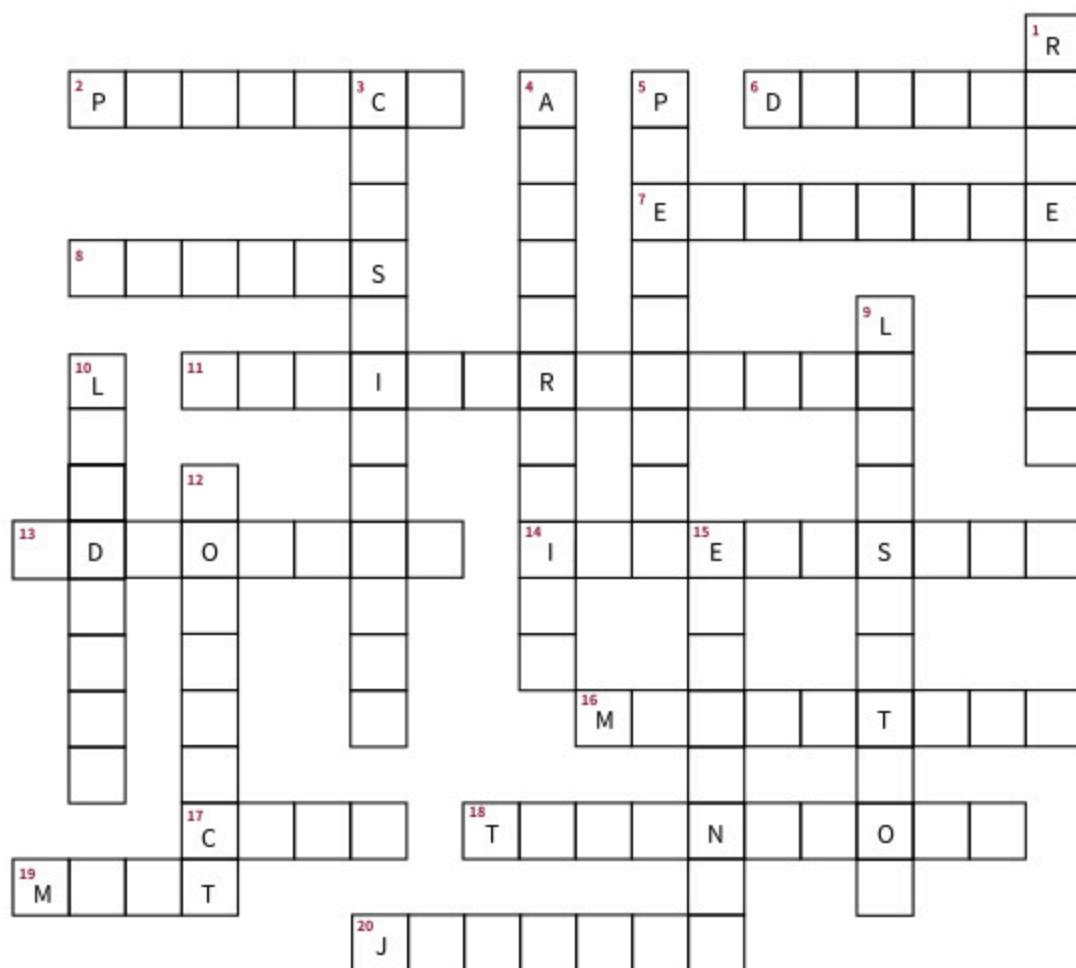

Basic appliances, a fully functional cafeteria serving breakfast, lunch, and dinner (catered by TajSATS), shuttle services to Thane and nearby transport hubs, and in-house wardens ensure that student life is comfortable and well supported.

ELEGIBILITY & EVALUATION CRITERIA

ELEGIBILITY

Minimum 45% in Grade 12 (or equivalent) from a recognised board to participate in the admissions process. This does not guarantee selection.

Students awaiting Grade 12 results may apply by submitting their predicted Grade 12 scores or Grade 11 actual scores.

EVALUATION CRITERIA

Scores of one or more of the following:

- BITS Law Admission Test / CLAT / LNAT / AILET / MH CET Law / SLAT - multiple scores may be submitted; best score will be considered
- Grade 10 and Grade 12 academic performance
- Co-curricular achievements
- Oral communication and interpretation skills (assessed at personal interview)

*MH CET Law scores are typically announced in May/June. If all available seats have been filled by the time the results are declared, MH CET Law scores will not be considered for further admission evaluation.

However, this condition will not apply to students who have already enrolled and had selected MH CET Law as one of their accepted entrance test options at the time of application, in addition to any other qualifying entrance examination scores.

All components of the admissions process- including application sections, entrance test scores, Class 10 scores, Class 12 scores, extracurricular achievements, and the Personal Interview (PI) - are assigned specific weightages. The overall aggregate score derived from these components is used to determine admission offers as well as scholarship eligibility.

For Personal Interview (PI) shortlisting, applicants will be evaluated based on their entrance test score, Class 10 score, Class 11 actual score or Class 12 predicted score (for students currently appearing for Class 12 examinations), or Class 12 actual score (where available), along with their extracurricular achievements.

Only applicants who meet the prescribed shortlisting criteria and cutoff requirements will be invited for the Personal Interview.
