A Short-Term Skill Enhancement Course for Law Teachers

Last Date to Register: October 20, 2026

PROGRAMME CONCEPT

Transformative Teaching in Law is conceived as a focused one-week Faculty Development Programme designed to strengthen the pedagogical capacity of teachers engaged in higher legal education. The programme recognises that effective legal education extends beyond the transmission of legal rules: it requires teachers to facilitate critical thinking, problem-solving, professional skills, ethical reasoning, classroom participation and meaningful engagement with emerging technologies.

Across six days, the FDP moves from foundational questions of legal pedagogy to active and experiential learning, technology and artificial intelligence, innovative assessment, inclusive teaching, and the design of practical pedagogical frameworks. Each day features two connected sessions delivered by one resource person, allowing participants to explore a theme in depth and translate ideas into classroom practice.

OBJECTIVES

- To familiarise law teachers with contemporary approaches to teaching and learning in higher legal education.
- To strengthen classroom engagement through active, participatory and learner-centred pedagogies.
- To explore case-based, Socratic, problem-based, clinical and experiential approaches to legal education.
- To examine the responsible use of digital tools and artificial intelligence in legal teaching and learning.
- To develop capacity for outcome-based teaching and innovative assessment practices.
- To promote inclusive, reflective and practice-oriented approaches to teaching law.
