GNLU is also distinctive in establishing a satellite campus in Silvassa, becoming the only National Law University to expand beyond its primary location.

About GNLU Centre for Healthcare, Ethics, Legal Advocacy, and Policy Research (G-HELP)

The GNLU Centre for Healthcare, Ethics, Legal Advocacy, and Policy Research (G-HELP) was established on 28th September 2024 as a Centre of Excellence, focused on advancing healthcare law, policy and ethics. The Centre builds on GNLU's Postgraduate Diploma in Medical Law, Policy and Ethics, offered exclusively to medical practitioners, and seeks to strengthen the legal and ethical foundations of healthcare through education, research, training and public engagement.

Since its establishment, G-HELP has organised healthcare awareness initiatives, including the 'Healthcare for All' community health camp at Koba Village, and convened MEDLAWCON, its national conference on medical law, policy and ethics, bringing together healthcare professionals, legal experts, academics and researchers. The Centre has also undertaken initiatives to promote healthcare awareness and interdisciplinary dialogue on contemporary medico-legal issues.

Going forward, G-HELP will continue to develop specialised training and capacity-building programmes, undertake research on emerging healthcare challenges, organise academic conferences and workshops, and conduct public awareness initiatives on health rights, medical ethics and healthcare laws. Through collaborations with medical institutions, professional bodies, government agencies and other stakeholders, the Centre aims to contribute to evidence-informed policy, ethical medical practice and accessible, equitable and patient-centred healthcare.
